

William Dieter

Dr. Dieter received his doctorate in physical therapy (DPT) from Thomas Jefferson University in 2011 and graduated summa cum laude as a member of the Alpha Eta Honor Society. He has been the Director of PT Clinical Services at FOX Rehabilitation, overseeing the clinical practice of several hundred physical therapists, since 2014. He more recently became the Director of the FOX Geriatric Residency in Physical Therapy, from which he graduated in 2013 and obtained his board certification in geriatric physical therapy. He is also an adjunct faculty at Rutgers University and has performed original research and presented on the topics of translational research and quality improvement in various settings. Two of his original research papers, on the topic, have been accepted for peer-reviewed publication. He is an active APTA member and, since 2013, he has presented at state level APTANJ district meetings, semi-annual conferences, APTA's Combined Sections Meeting, APTA's NEXT Conference, and the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons Annual Meeting. His main areas of interest are falls and balance, quality improvement in geriatric physical therapy, and residency/fellowship education.
