

J. Nwando Olayiwola, MD, MPH, FAAFP

Dr. Olayiwola is a Board-certified family physician and joined Humana as its first Chief Health Equity Officer/SVP in 2021. She led the creation of an ambitious health equity strategy, and her team is implementing multiple product, workforce, clinical and community health innovations and programs tackling health disparities and social needs for populations that have been marginalized or made vulnerable. Some highlights of this work include Humana's robust data disaggregation approach, screening thousands of members for health literacy and social needs and using those insights to inform predictive models on social risk, execution of a comprehensive cultural humility training for Humana primary care clinicians leading to positive behavior change, and creation of a comprehensive health equity performance composite for Humana members and patients.
