

Calie Santana, MD, MHS

Dr. Santana is Senior Medical Principal at Evernorth, a health services company focused on eliminating barriers to care and unleashing the power of data across pharmacy, care, and benefits. Dr. Santana is a leading expert in applying analytics to healthcare delivery problems—from health systems, to multispecialty groups, and now health plans, unions and employers. Prior to joining Evernorth, she served as Chief Health Informatics Officer at Westmed Medical Group and Associate Director of Quality at Montefiore Medical Center. In addition, she was selected to the inaugural class of Crain's New York Notable Women in Healthcare in 2018. Her career in healthcare leadership combines population health, value-based contracting, digital health integration, and performance metric design. She practices Internal Medicine at Montefiore Medical Group in NY. Dr. Santana grew up in Puerto Rico, studied Biology and Spanish Literature at Cornell University, and completed her medical degree at Harvard Medical School.
