

Rachit Thariani

Rachit Thariani is chief administrative officer for the Wexner Medical Center's Post-Acute and Home-Based Care Division. In this role, Rachit provides strategic and operational leadership for the home and post-acute care division, a key element of Ohio State's overall health platform. He oversees a portfolio of programs and services designed created to build a better continuum of care that meets people where they are so that Ohio State can provide a more convenient and accessible health care experience that's also more personal and connected. Rachit also provides leadership for Ohio State's value-based care and population health efforts, including serving as the executive leader for Ohio State's accountable care organization. With Ohio State since 2004, Rachit has served in various leadership roles including chief population health officer, interim chief strategy officer and chief planning officer for the Wexner Medical Center. Over the years, he's been instrumental in driving strategic growth, including developing and implementing the strategic plan and its associated components, creating numerous high-impact business plans, and setting up new, impactful partnerships.
